

DIANA POSTLEWAIT

Watercolor Artist

Artist Biography

Diana grew up in a family of artists. Both her mother and her grandfather were artistic as were others in the family. Although she enjoyed art as a kid, her career and life's path took her in a totally different direction, and she only "collected" art. Diana did not start painting until 2010. She is mostly a self-taught artist who enjoys occasional classes and workshops to learn new skills and improve her work. She has tried other crafts and mediums but prefers the challenge of watercolor, the softness, versatility and sometimes the unpredictability.

Artist Statement

My work is very much evolving. My style is yet to be determined. I enjoy exploring different techniques and different subjects, like animals, flowers and architecture and different styles like cartoon, detail and even abstract.

"Last Dance" 8.25"W x 14"H

"Appropriate A-Tire" 8 3/16"H x 10 3/16"H

It is most important that my work touches people, reminding them of good memories, making people happy, and making them smile.

Proceeds from the sale(s) of my paintings are donated to Shriners' Children's, Spokane, WA.
