

Before starting painting, I started making fabric art wall hangings and fun baby quilts, using my ideas, not patterns.

I have never had art classes in school but always liked watercolor. After retiring I took classes from different teachers for different perspectives. I find art both relaxing and challenging.

This world with its unending colors, varied shapes, sizes plants and animals, ever changing, always surprising, I can't limit my paintings to one idea. A flower, a bird, a snow laden tree, all call out a challenge.

Nancy Burney Huck

